Notebooks: You should have a notebook where you keep all of your classwork and homework. Although your notes will not always be checked, students have said that they are very helpful on the test. Some assignments will be digital. Make sure you are familiar with GoogleClassroom, your CAP blog and myMCPS Classroom.

Textbooks: The textbook Government in America is the backbone of the course. Although I will try as often as possible to supplement the chapter with videos or articles, it is important to take good notes, particularly on vocabulary and its application.

Homework: You are expected to read and do the homework in order to be prepared for class. Homework may not be checked every day but is assigned because it aids understanding. Homework is graded for accuracy where appropriate, like on Chapter Reviews. Your homework will often be your ticket to re-assessment.

Late Work/Makeup Policy: You can make up up work for an absences within three days of the absence. Please check in with your study partner and with me to be sure you have the work you missed and understand the time frame. Late work will be accepted with a 10% penalty up to three days after the assignment was due.

Studying: This is many of your first AP class. I will work with you to develop good study habits but you must also start making good choices. Work with a study buddy to review material, ask questions and get makeup work. Set aside a designated time for review. Come see me when you have a question, not after a test gets graded. I will hold study skills sessions & review sessions for the test, but you need to make the effort to attend.

This class can earn you college credit and is assessed as a college course.

It is my job to maintain an environment in which all students can learn comfortably. This class will be filled with political discussion and you need to engage your peers respectfully, even when they disagree with you. Disruptive, inappropriate, and disrespectful behaviors will not be tolerated.

I have read through this AP U.S. Government and Politics syllabus, and I understand my responsibilities for the course.
